

12/01/18 - THE JOINT (Night 2) - Las Vegas, NV

HOLY FUCKING SHIT! Tonight's set was insane! My friend and I were blown away at the fact that nothing newer was played and every song came from the first eight years of NIN. We planted ourselves right behind the mixing desk once again and noticed that the floor was packed when compared to night #1. This time around I didn't drink; one: ~~because~~ because I was so hung over from the night before and two: because I wanted to focus on the recording so as to not have a repeat from the night before. Sadly I had a girl who was piss drunk behind me and kept screaming into my ear all night. I'm positive that she will show up on the recording and I'm sorry about that. Thankfully her boyfriend saw that I was annoyed and eventually moved her away so the recording should clear up at some point.

~~and~~ (Sorry about my chicken-scratch handwriting)

Anyways, some of my personal highlights from tonights show are as follows:

- SIN: I ~~love~~ absolutely love this song live. Its been a minute since I had the pleasure to see it performed so I got excited when I heard the opening notes.
- THE PERFECT DRUG: I think I speak for everyone when I say "ITS ABOUT DAMN TIME!"
- Sanctified: I really enjoy this down tempo version and this was the first time I heard "Sunspots" mixed into it. My recording came out really well so check it out when you get a chance.
- Physical: if memory serves me correctly this is the first time I have seen this so performed live and it was baggin'. Going forward I would love to see this song swapped in place of "Suck"

- A warm place: This song has some special meaning for me. I was so excited if hear the opening notes as I instantly knew what song was coming. This track has only been played live 3 times and I have had the pleasure of hearing it twice. Once tonight and the other time was 9 years ago in Los Angeles.

Overall this show has been my favorite in recent years (it's really hard to top the 9/10/09 show in LA. 37 songs were played with a bunch of guest appearances!)

I am looking forward to the shows in San Francisco and then I have a long drive back down to SoCal for the LA dates!