Dec ~~4th~~ 2018 - San Francisco, CA

Night one of the SF dates was awesome. I love this venue and was really excited to see that Nails had picked this place for the tour. It was pouring out when we arrived to the venue and yet fans were still in good spirits while waiting to get inside. Once inside we made our way to the floor and looked for a place to post up for the night. Man, I forgot how huge this venue is. There was already a sea of fans in the GA section so I said "lets head over to the mixing desk" and we found a great spot that wasn't ~~crowded~~ crowded. Shortly after the show started, Lars from Metallica made his way into the mixing desk area to watch the show. Man, I had no idea how short he is until this night. Anyways, what a hell of a setlist once again! I really dig how

Trent is mixing up each night and breaking the normal playlists. Some of my personal highlights are the following:

LAST: Fucking awesome track live! I was there in 2009 when Trent broke this out for the first time and I'm glad he brought it out again on this tour.

SIN: Not much to say about this track other than it sounds amazing live.

DEAR WORLD: Its nice to finally hear this track live, It transitioned pretty well from CD to live, check out my recording when you get a chance.

SUBTERRANEANS: Its so awesome to see ~~the~~ Trent play the song and this cover song is excellent live.

BURNING BRIGHT: I really wish TR would stop playing this song live. It sounds great on CD but the megaphone live is annoying.

HOME: This one was a nice surprise since it doesn't get much play anymore.

HURT: Man, when will Trent finally cut this song from the setlist? Give me TDTWLA as a closer or something else.
